Rhode Island Department of Education Data Collection Specifications – Educator Vacancy Data Collection

Last Updated on January 26, 2024

About

Educator Vacancy data provides information regarding unfilled positions in RI's LEAs and schools. This collection includes positions that were filled before the school year started, positions that were not filled before the school year started and positions that were filled but became unfilled.

A position covered by a day-to-day substitute is still a vacant position.

If a position is covered by a long-term substitute, then that position should be reported with the closed date of when the long term substitute was assigned the portion.

RIDE will use the data to analyze the teacher shortage in real time at the school and district level. This data will allow RIDE to advocate for LEA support at the state level, impact policy with educator preparation programs, advocate for educator pipeline initiatives, offer access to grants, and recommend certification regulation changes.

Include - All district administrators, building administrators, teachers and support professionals positions need to be included in this reporting. Any position that requires a certified educator must be reported in this collection. For charter schools, please review this guidance on certified positions.

District administrator –An educator working under a District Level Administrator certification. This would include district superintendent, district special education director, district curriculum directors, etc.

Building administrator —An educator working under a Building Level Administrator certification. This would include school principals, school assistant principals, head of school, dean of students, school business administrator, etc.

Teacher – An educator working under a teacher certification whose primary responsibilities include instructional planning, managing a classroom environment, and student instruction.

Support professional – An educator, other than a teacher or administrator, who has primary responsibility as an instructional leader, a specialist/consultant, or a related service provider in schools. This would include reading specialists/consultants, mathematics specialists/consultants, English as a second language specialists/consultants, instructional leaders, school counselors, school psychologists, speech language pathologists, and school social workers.

Vacancy: A vacant position is defined as an unfilled position that currently exists, is newly created, or is about to become open, for which the LEA is taking steps to find a suitable candidate.

Requirements

The Educator Vacancy data should be updated to align with the vacancies in your LEA – as positions become vacant or filled, this needs to be updated in the Educator Vacancy data collection. This real-time data will be used throughout the year as needed by RIDE. In addition, this real-time data will be used in the Vacancy Dashboard which is public facing.

Changes for 2023-24 School Year

This is a new collection for the 2023-24 school year.

Submission Process

Educator Vacancy data is accessed through eRIDE using the Personnel Data Collection application. This application allows an initial upload of data to facilitate the large number of vacancies that occur throughout the summer. Individual records can then be edited through the Educator Vacancy of the Personnel Data Collection application.
